

I urge you to allow LPFM to spread it's reach to more communities in America, as director for outreach for the Media Collective and Organizer for the Campus Greens my first priority is the constant fight for free speech. I believe that if we would have more LPFM stations in the area citizens could be heard. Our Local NPR affiliate has been blocking the progress of turning over the air to the citizens and refuses to broadcast Democracy Now!, a locally popular independant news program. Our school's student radio station has been locked up for years without a transmitter in a battle with KSOR (the local affiliate) and can only be heard on the internet, we wish to reach out to students who don't have computers at home, and allow students with interships and practium credits at the radio station to be really heard.
